WILL IT BE GRESHAM?

Cleveland is Said to Have Offered Him the State Portfolio

And it is Reported That the Judge has Accepted—Comment of Prominent Democrats.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Judge Walter Q. Gresham, of Chicago, is to be secretary of state in the Cleveland administration.

This fact became known here today to a few persons. The offer of the post has been made to Judge Gresham and he has accepted it. Mr. Cleveland himself will make the fact known in a day or two.

The rumor that Gresham was offered the place was circulated here some time ago and was received with incredulity, by many democrats. They did not believe it possible Mr. Cleveland would go outside the ranks of his own party for a secretary of state, and did not think Judge Gresham would accept even if the tender was made him. But the unexpected has happened and Judge Gresham will in two weeks resign his seat on the bench and prepare to remove to Washington to take up his duties as secretary of state.

Thus a man who four years ago was a candidate for the republican presidential nomination is to be premier under the incoming democratic administration.

Mr. Cleveland's position in the matter has been that in the selection of a secretary of state he did not propose to stand strictly by party limits. He has all along said that he wanted the best man that could be found in the country. He wanted a man strong and learned, of perfect personal and public integrity, and who had to an unusual degree the confidence of the people. This ideal was more closely filled by Judge Gresham than any other man Mr. Cleveland could think of.

While Mr. Cleveland was in this frame of mind Judge Gresham happened to come to this city. It is not known whether he came by invitation of Mr. Cleveland or not, but it is known that he was called upon by Mr. Whitney at his hotel and that Mr. Whitney informed Mr. Gresham that his name had been under consideration for secretary of state. Judge Gresham was surprised at this, and said to Mr. Whitney that he could not think it possible he was in earnest. But Mr. Whitney urged the judge to call on Mr. Cleveland, and within an hour or so an invitation from Mr. Cleveland to the judge to call at his house was presented by a messenger.

Judge Gresham did call on Mr. Cleveland and a man who knows something of what took place at that interview said today that the call was of two hours' duration, but that he did not believe the matter of the cabinet was directly mentioned at that time. The two men had never met and they spent a pleasant two hours discussing the general political situation and the favorable impression which Mr. Cleveland had already formed of his visitor was confirmed by this interview.

Shortly afterward Mr. Dickinson made a trip to Chicago and carried Mr. Cleveland's offer. Judge Gresham was not surprised at it, for, as already said, he had had intimations that Mr. Cleveland might tender him the post. But he had thought the matter over and had concluded to decline. He did decline in most positive terms. It is reported here that his words were: "Mr. Cleveland cannot afford to offer me the place and I cannot afford to take it."

Mr. Cleveland then asked Senator Gray, of Delaware, to take the secretaryship of state, but Senator Gray, who had just been re-elected by the legislature, declined. Mr. Cleveland then turned again to Judge Gresham and the astute and secretive Don M. Dickinson was once more sent on a secret mission to Chicago. Finally Judge Gresham was persuaded to accept. He did so only when Mr. Cleveland's great need and the country's great need of his services was pointed out to him.

The argument which had the most effect with Judge Gresham was that the new administration would be brought face to face with some of the most important questions of the age, questions of a delicate and possibly dangerous nature, involving the peace and welfare of the country and that the new president had almost a right to command the services of any distinguished citizen whom he might think most available for the duty of the hour. With much reluctance Judge Gresham gave his consent and Mr. Dickinson carried the news back to this city, greatly to his own and Mr. Cleveland's delight.

Gresham Refuses to Talk.

CHICAGO, Feb. 9.—Judge Gresham refused last night to discuss the dispatch from New York relative to his acceptance of a cabinet portfolio. This action on the part of the eminent jurist, when taken in conjunction with the questions put to him by the reporter, is equivalent to an acknowledgment that he has accepted the premiership. It will be readily understood that Judge Gresham could not talk on the subject until Mr. Cleveland had announced his selections.

Judge Gresham greeted his caller with that fine courtesy which is a distinguishing trait of the man and led the way to his library.

"I am very glad to see you," said he, "but I'll tell you at once that I must decline to talk politics."

"The Herald has a dispatch from New York, judge," said the reporter, "which announces that you have accepted the state portfolio in Mr. Cleveland's cabinet. We would like to publish a statement from you."

"I must, with respect for the Herald's wishes, decline to say a single word on the subject. It would not be proper to do otherwise."

"Will you say when you will retire from the bench?"

"Now, you know," said Judge Gresham with a smile, "that to answer that would be giving you an answer to the other question."

Before leaving the house the reporter took occasion to say, "permit me to extend my congratulations upon your selection as premier of the incoming administration." Judge Gresham pressed his visitor's hand warmly, smiled pleasantly, but did not say a word in reply.

What Prominent Democrats Say.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Great interest was manifested here by the rumor which came from New York to the effect that Judge Gresham was to be secretary of state under President Cleveland. Don Dickinson, when asked about the rumor, replied:

"You will have to ask Mr. Cleveland about that. It is his business and not mine. But I feel sure of one thing, and that is if Judge Gresham should go into the cabinet he would make a strong minister and help to give the people confidence in the administration. I know Judge Gresham very well and I look upon him as being now as good a democrat as there is in the country. If Mr. Cleveland has succeeded in inducing Judge Gresham to be his secretary of state, it is a fortunate thing for the party and the country. But you will have to see Mr. Cleveland as to the truth of the rumor."

Mr. Dickinson declined to discuss the matter farther and refused to say whether or not he had made a flying and secret visit to Chicago within the last week.

In the senate chamber, particularly among the immediate friends of Senator Carlisle, the rumor that Judge Gresham was to be secretary of state became the subject of much discussion.

Senator Gorman was one of the prominent democrats who expressed himself as hopeful that the rumor would prove correct. He said to his associates that there was little politics in the state department, and that what was most needed there was a strong man to assist the president in the management of the country's affairs rather than a politician. Mr. Gorman said he believed the country and the democratic party would approve the selection of Judge Gresham, if the judge had indeed accepted the place.

Other democrats expressed themselves in the same strain, notably Senator Gray, who is himself understood to have declined the portfolio of state.

Senator Gray said to the correspondent that he knew nothing of the matter except that he had heard the rumor of Mr. Gresham's selection, but he was confident no better man could be found for the place. Other democratic senators expressed similar opinions.

Senator Voorhees, who is a warm personal friend of Judge Gresham, said the appointment, if made, would be received with great enthusiasm among the democrats of Indiana and the west generally. "When democracy rises to the height in which it can take into its ranks such distinguished converts," said Senator Voorhees, "and make use of them in the management of the government the future of the party is safe. A party that can attract such men on principle and hold them within the organization cannot be defeated."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The house has sent the silver repeal bill to the rules committee, which kills the bill so far as the present session of congress is concerned.

MANY LIVES LOST.

The Steamer Trinacria Strikes a Rock and Sinks.

MADRID, Feb. 9.—A dispatch from Corruna states that the Anchor Line steamer Trinacria struck the rocks and thirty persons were drowned by the sinking of the steamer.

Promotion Merited and Appreciated.

On January 23, 1893, Mr. Thomas M. Glenn received official notice from Mr. C. D. Law, superintendent of the Pennsylvania company, that he was promoted from a position as conductor, which he had satisfactorily filled for several years, to another position as assistant trainmaster in charge of passenger train service, with headquarters at Chicago. This was a surprise and a welcome. But the Pennsylvania company knows its men, and knows how to take care of them. Mr. Glenn is of the kind of men who grow and prosper in good company. His connection with the Allen County Loan and Savings association illustrates this. Not unfriendly nor harmful to others in that line, he was eminently and practically useful to this association, to which he was specially devoted. This fact has been fully recognized by the board of directors, who have received his resignation as director, and as one of the appraisers of the property upon which loans were received. Mr. Glenn's good judgment in these lines of duty and service, has contributed with the careful and conservative action of others, to make a marked success in the growth of this association. His retirement as officer is placed upon record with honorable mention, and with best wishes from his associates for further progress and success in his new and responsible position.

A PROTECTORATE.

Minister Stevens Takes a Grave Responsibility Upon Himself,

And Settles the Hawaiian Matter Temporarily by Establishing a Protectorate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—The press dispatches from San Francisco this morning were the first information received at the state department, and, by the way, to the annexation commissioners of the establishment of a protectorate on the Hawaiian Islands by Minister Stevens. Secretary Foster, in pursuance to the policy that he has adopted in dealing with this whole matter, declined to discuss Minister Steven's action, but stated that there had been no communication sent from the department to Mr. Stevens for his guidance since the note of January 18, in which his action in connection with the provisional government was approved. Mr. Thurston, the head of the annexation commission, was in consultation with the secretary at the time the news was received with reference to the next conference between the commissioner and the secretary which was fixed for this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when the the Hawaiian visitors were informed of the existence of the protectorate, which was before the arrival of the dispatch giving the details of the establishment they all agreed in the opinion that there had been no outbreak requiring the action of the United States minister but that it was due to threats of trouble. Mr. Carter said that among some members of the provisional government the sentiment had prevailed before the departure of the commissioners for the United States that a protectorate should be sought, but this feeling had been discouraged by himself and Mr. Thurston, they believing that the government should stand upon its own bottom pending the negotiations with this country. When the details arrived and were communicated to them Mr. Thurston and his associates said that the whites who made the trouble to which the Honolulu Advertiser referred comprised what was known as the "opium gang politicians" and they would be known in this country as ward strikers or "heelers." Mr. Kinney, of Salt Lake, who accompanied the committee in the capacity of counsel, said that the most significant item of news in the dispatch from Honolulu was: "There have been indications of dissensions existing among the members of the executive council. This betrays the great danger which threatens the government. The members of the council are men who have been clothed with authority without any previous experience in the exercise of it, and without the restraining force of a protectorate they would inevitably have divided into factions and worked at cross purposes. A protectorate confirming the government in its control of affairs was absolutely necessary. The Hawaiians are the most perfect example of a people unable to manage their own affairs that I know." Mr. Kinney said that the drowning of Miss Stevens, daughter of the American minister, had probably occurred at Hawaii while she was in bathing. Hawaii is the largest of the group and some distance from Honolulu. Of the two gentlemen who were named as having arrived at San Francisco on the Australia, Mr. Kinney said that Paul Neuman was, as had been stated, the former attorney general in the cabinet of the deposed queen and comes to this country as her personal representative, his errand being to present to the government of the United States her side of the controversy. Prince David is a nephew of the queen and was an inferior chief prior to the bestowment upon him by King Kalakua, of the complimentary title of prince. The Hawaiian and the officials of the state and navy departments expect advices from their representatives later in the day.

HONOLULU, Feb. 9.—News was received this morning of the death by drowning, at Hawaii, of Miss Stevens, the American minister's eldest daughter. The flags of all the consulates are flying at half mast. There has been no trouble since last advices, though there have been indications of dissensions existing among the members of the executive council. The new government has been busy since its inception. The legislature has held daily sessions, and several important acts have been passed. The lottery franchise act has been repealed and the following form of oath of allegiance to the provisional government has been adopted: "I do solemnly swear in the presence of Almighty God, that I will support the provisional government of Hawaiian Islands, promulgated and proclaimed on the 17th day of January, 1893; not hereby renouncing, but expressly reserving all allegiance to any foreign country now owing by me." Hundreds took the oath the first day it was available. The legislature also passed an act prohibiting the importation of fire arms or explosives, except by the government. Since the change of government took place ex-Queen Liliuokalani has resided at her country residence. It has been stated, however, that she has held several secret meetings with Kahunas in the city. Shortly after the sailing of the last steamer the provisional government received certificates of recognition as the defacto government from Japan, France, Great Britain, Chili, Denmark, Germany, Austro-Hungary, Spain, Portugal, Peru and Netherlands.

At 9 o'clock this morning the American flag was raised over the government house. It was the only sensational event since last advices. No trouble occurred. The marines and sailors of the United States steamer Boston are paraded through the streets several times each day. They have not been interferred with since they first landed. As the steamer leaves everything is orderly and no trouble is apprehended by the new government.

Among the passengers sailing today are Neuman and Prince David. It is believed that their destination is Washington, where they will present their claims of the dethroned powers.

The Senate and House Committees of the Legislature.

The New Charter in the Hands of the Committee—Salaries for the Commissioners—Legislative Gossip.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 9, '93.

Special to THE SENTINEL:

The senate and house committees will visit Fort Wayne Saturday afternoon and remain in the city over the Sabbath, visiting the feeble minded institution. The chances are not very bright for a very large appropriation, although I think we will be as well served as other institutions.

The new charter is in the hands of the committee of cities and towns, of which Mr. Rodabaugh is chairman. He informed me that as soon as he could get the bill before the house and have it printed, he would send copies to Fort Wayne, so our people would have a chance to read it.

The bill putting the county commissioners of Allen on a salary of $1,200 per year has passed the senate. It compels the commissioners to pay their own livery bills and other expenses. It will likely pass the house with some amendments. Williams, of Brown county, chairman of the committee on fees and salaries, opposes the bill, and Representative Rodabaugh has agreed on a compromise to make the salary $1,000 per year instead of $1,200. It is understood that Mr. Dalman will also support this bill with the changes above stated.

Senator Morgan is confined to his room in the English hotel with a very painful throat trouble. It will be several days, his physician says, before he can go to the senate.

Senator Bird and Representatives Hench, Rodabaugh and Dalman will be among the visitors to Fort Wayne Saturday.

S. E. Morss, editor of the Indianapolis Sentinel, who has been quite sick for some time, is somewhat better, although still quite a sick man.

The pravoke law was up again in the house today and was completely squelched. Hench and Rodabaugh made a strong fight for the bill, but it was no go.

William Mannix is making an excellent doorkeeper, and is very popular with the members of the senate.

Fred Zollars is pleasing all and makes a fine postmaster.

THE SENTINEL representative heard a prominent gentleman from Jennings county at the New Denison table say at noon today that he considered Representative Rodabaugh, of Fort Wayne, one of the brightest and most active members of the house.

Representative Dalman is working hard to get his gravel road bill through the house. E. A. K. H.

A MEAN IMPOSITION.

Mrs. Effie McLaren, of Chicago, Lured To Fort Wayne.

Some days ago Mrs. Effie McLaren, of Chicago, inserted an advertisement in a daily paper of that city, asking for a situation as housekeeper. The advertisement was answered by one John Wakefield, a poor and needy laborer of this city, who lives in a shanty at the corner of Home avenue and Broadway. The lady accepted his offer and arrived here to accept what she thought was a fine position in an elegant suburban home. When she was driven to the shanty by a hackman she was overcome by grief at being so imposed upon. Mrs. McLaren is a lady of refinement and has a six-months-old child. She is a widow, her husband having died not long ago.

This morning Humane Officer Read went out to the shanty to investigate the case; several ladies of the Relief Union also arrived. As a result Mrs. McLaren, who spent her last cent to reach here, was taken to the Home of Emergencies.

Rev. and Mrs. O. W. Pierce, of Winchester, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Slater, of Bass street. This evening, at Trinity M. E. church, in Bloomingdale, Rev. Pierce will deliver his interesting lecture, "Ignorant Preachers." As the reverend gentleman is a former citizen of Fort Wayne and is known by many of our citizens, it is fair to presume that Trinity church will be crowded tonight. Rev. Pierce is also an author of considerable note, among his recent productions in that line being the "Church Republic," a book which is meeting with a large sale. Ten or twelve years ago Rev. Pierce was pastor of the Wayne street M. E. church, being succeeded by the late Rev. Marine, who died some years ago out west.

John Zimmer, general manager of the Singer Sewing Machine company, at Garrett City, Ind., has resigned that position and taken one with the company in this city.

Ross A. McAfee have a telephone. It is No. 489.

MET DEATH IN FLAMES!

Four Persons Perish in an Early Morning Fire.

Heroism of Albert Gran, Who Lost His Own Life While Attempting to Save Others.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Feb. 9.—At 3:55 this morning smoke was seen issuing from a third floor window of John Heider's restaurant at 255 and 257 West Fifth street. The blaze raged furiously, having gained a firm and at the same time a mysterious hold in the rear of the buildings, which are frame kitchen sheds. From the third floor it soon leaped to the top floor, the fourth, and a general alarm was sent in, summoning a dozen engines. The fire spread to the upper floors of the vacant building adjoining at the east, No. 253 West Fifth street, and then to the top of the structure adjoining at the west, No. 259 West Fifth street, occupied by G. A. Vehr as a shoe store. Vehr and his daughter, Anna, occupants of the living rooms above, escaped without much difficulty.

The ghastly discovery that four human beings had perished in the flames was not made until about 8 o'clock. The fire was practically subdued and several of the engines had been sent back to their homes. Others remained, pouring water into the smoking and dripping structure. When the smoke had sufficiently subsided to permit the firemen to venture into the upper floors of the Heider building a crew of ladder No. 7 ascended and entered the windows.

The first room entered was the bedroom of Fred Detzler, aged twenty-two, a young waiter employed in Heider's restaurant. There was no evidence of life or corpse. A peculiar pungent odor, which has to firemen an awful and certain meaning, caused one of them to look under the bed. There lay the remains of Detzler, a charred black flesh heap.

The firemen, fearful of farther finds, proceeded into the next room. Here was found the body of a baker named Gottlieb Munsinger. He too, was employed by John Heider. He was thirty years of age. The corpse was in an even more sickening state than that of young Detzler. Near by was another flesh heap, the remnants of "Old Joe" Mauser, a helper about the place. He was aged about sixty. Most pitiable of all was the finding of the burned and blistered corpse of Albert Gran, who died the death of a hero. Gran was a man of thirty years, a fireman in the restaurant. His character was such as to evoke the esteem of all who knew him, and his death, while faithfully performing a perilous task, is touching to tell. Being a strong and vigorous young man, he might have saved himself.

The smell of smoke aroused him and he rushed to the doors of the apartments occupied by the Heiders and kicked resoundingly at each. He cried lustily "the building is afire," arousing the entire family. He made sure of their safety and then rushed back to the floor above to save Detzler, Gottlieb and Mauser whom he knew to be still in the holocaust. He rushed to their aid and this act was his own undoing. While he was laboring to arouse them heavy gusts of smoke poured through the stairway, by the means of which the Heiders had just made their escape. He continued to belabor the door, although his conscience was fleeting. The position of the body when discovered showed that he had clutched madly at his throat. He doubtless at the moment recognized that escape was then impossible even should he attempt it.

The bodies were removed to the morgue. John Heider stated that he believed the fire to be the work of incendiaries. He says that there was no possible way for the destructive blaze to have originated in the building, as no fires were kept in the building during the night. The loss on the building and contents, is estimated at $10,000.

MENOMINEE, Mich., Feb. 9.—Fire destroyed the I. M. and M. hospital building, which was occupied as a private boarding house, at an early hour this morning. The inmates barely escaped with their lives. One of the boarders had his leg broken and many others were seriously cut and bruised by jumping from the windows.

PORTLAND, Mich., Feb. 9.—Newman & Rice's big flouring mill was destroyed by fire this morning. Loss, $20,000. Besides this farmers lose 1,000 bushels of wheat. Insurance $10,000.

SAWED HIS HAND.

Charles Bennigan Receives a Painful Wound.

Charles Bennigan is employed at the Standard Wheel works. A part of his duties in that establishment is to run a circular saw, and while thus engaged this morning he slipped and his right hand came in contact with the wicked machine. The blade entered the palm of the hand, between the thumb and index finger, and split it completely open. Happily no bones were injured. Dr. J. E. Miller attended the unfortunate man. It required about a dozen stitches to close the gaping wound.

The meetings at the church corner of Jefferson and Griffith streets, are in progress. The sermons of J. V. Updike are plain, pointed and practical. Subject tonight, "Our Christ." Question drawer. Bring any question you wish to have answered, pertaining to the plan of salvation. Supper in the church from 5 to 7 o'clock tonight. Services begin at 7:30. Welcome to all.

The missing Nathan-Rothschild diamonds have not yet turned up.

CITY OFFICIALS.

Their Terms of Office Will be Made Four Years.

The Amendment Which Has Passed the Senate and Will Probably Pass the House.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 9, '93.

Special to THE SENTINEL:

An important bill, which has already passed the senate and is about to pass the house, is the one which is published below, and if it becomes a law will keep all of our present city officers at Fort Wayne in their respective offices for two years longer. I have interviewed all our representatives and they say it will pass the house. It is an act to amend section eight of the laws now in force for the incorporation and government of cities to which Fort Wayne belongs. The section which it is proposed to make a law reads as follows:

The officers of such city shall consist of a mayor, two councilmen from each ward, a city clerk, treasurer, civil engineer, street commissioner, chief of the fire department, health officer, marshal, and (if the common council deem it expedient) a city attorney and a city judge. The city attorney, the street commissioner, the civil engineer, the chief engineer of the fire department and the health officer shall be appointed by the common council, provided, that the common council may dispense with the street commissioner and require the marshal to perform his duties. All such officers shall hold their respective offices for four (4) years and until their successors are elected or appointed and qualified. Those who are appointed by the common council being subject to removal by the council at its pleasure.

After the first general election on the first Tuesday in May said officers shall respectively hold their offices as follows: The mayor, city judge, clerk, marshall and treasurer, four years each, and provided that the term of office of the aforesaid officers shall commence on the first Monday in September following the general election in May, and that the terms of office shall be four years from such Monday in September: And, provided further, That the mayor, clerk, treasurer, civil engineer, street commissioner, marshall, city attorney, city judge, chief engineer of the fire department and health officer now in office, and whose terms expire in May and September, 1893, or at any other time, shall hold their respective offices until the first Monday in the month of September, 1894, and that all and each of such officers as shall so hold shall procure from their sureties a written consent to the aforesaid extension or give a new bond to the satisfaction of the council, otherwise their term of office shall terminate in May and September of the original term for which they were elected or appointed, or at such time as their terms now expire. And the councilmen shall be elected by the legal voters of their respective wards, and the councilmen from each ward whose terms will expire in May, 1893, is hereby continued in office and his term extended until May, 1895, and the councilmen of each ward whose term would expire in May, 1894, is hereby continued in office and his term extended until May, 1896, and hereafter when two councilmen are chosen at the same time, from the same ward, it shall be determined by lot at the first regular meeting of the council after their election who shall hold his office for two years, and who for four years, and biennially thereafter one councilman shall be elected by the legal voters of each ward. The term of councilmen shall be four years, and they shall be elected biennially—the successors of those whose terms are extended until May, 1894, shall then be elected and their terms continue four years, and the successors of those whose terms are extended until May, 1896, shall then be elected and their term continue four years; and all of said officers shall hold their respective offices during their respective terms and until their successors are elected and qualified. The said clerk, treasurer and marshal, with the consent of the common council, may appoint one or more deputies when necessary; provided further, that the common council of a city governed by this act may order the election of an auditor, who shall be elected as other city officers are elected and shall hold his office for the term of four years and until his successor is elected and qualified, and the common council shall have the power to prescribe the manner of qualifying for such office, and to prescribe the powers and duties thereof, which shall in nowise conflict with the provisions of this act:

And provided further, That no person shall hold the office of councilman unless at the time of his election he is a resident of the ward from which he was elected; and in case of the removal of any councilman from the ward from which he was elected the common council shall have the power to declare his office vacant and to elect his successor to fill such vacancy as provided by law. All officers who are not specifically named herein, whose terms expire prior to the first Tuesday in May, 1894, at which date the first election under this amendment shall be held, are hereby continued in office until said time and until their successors are elected and qualified, they to give new bond as the council may direct.

Whereas, an emergency exists for the immediate taking effect of this act, therefore this act shall be in force from and after its passage.

ESCAPED—CAPTURED.

Frank Draeger Escapes From the Richmond Asylum,

Comes to His Home in This City and is Captured by Officers Melching and Kelkeldeerfer.

Last night Frank Draeger, an insane man who was taken to the Richmond asylum some time ago from this city, escaped from that institution by breaking the bars of the window in his room and jumping to the ground, fifteen feet below.

He then boarded a freight train and rode on the bumpers between the tender and first car, and rode as far as Decatur. Here he was discovered and put off the train by one of the brakeman, and he started on a tramp to this city, which he reached early this morning.

He immediately went to the home of his sister, Mrs. Corcoran, 169 Montgomery street, where at noon today he was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Melching and Officer Kelkelderfer, and taken to jail. He will be returned to Richmond.

T. E. Ellison, as attorney for Barbara Niebert, begins suit in the superior court asking that his client may be divorced from her husband, Herman Niebert, alleging intoxication, willful abuse and failure to support as the grounds.

THE LEGISLATURE.

The Most Important Work Done in Both Houses of the Indiana Legislature.

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb. 9.—The senate devoted the greater part of yesterday afternoon to Senator Gifford's bill, which places building and loan associations under the authority of the state and provides for an inspector. The bill requires a bond of $100,000 to be filed with the auditor of state.

Senator Baker called up senate bill 101, giving to policemen the same fees that are allowed constables in civil cases. The bill passed—yeas, 34.

Senator Bingham's bill, No. 170, passed without opposition. It provides that boards of town trustees may appoint one deputy marshal for each ward. The object of the bill, as explained by Senator Magee, was to secure extra help for sanitary purposes.

Senator Morgan's bill, No. 221, amending an act incorporating the Indiana Insurance company, approved January 15, 1850, was passed. The bill changes the name of the company to the Fort Wayne Insurance company and makes the liability of the stockholders the same as in banks, instead of the full amount of the company's liabilities.

In the senate Senator Aiken called up the bill to amend the ditch law. The old law made the land owner a preferred bidder for the work of dredging of ditches. The amended law puts him on the same level with other bidders. The bill passed—34 yeas.

At the noon session of the house the consideration of the constitutional amendments was made a special order for 2 o'clock on Monday.

The senate concurrent resolution, asking the Indiana congressmen and senators to vote for a law requiring all railroad companies to adopt a safety car coupler, was adopted by the house.

Representative Askren's bill relating to the construction of gravel roads was read the third time. The bill provides that county commissioners may guarantee bonds for one half the cost of constructing a gravel road and that in case the county has to pay the bonds the road passes to the ownership of the county and becomes free.

Representative Hench has introduced in the house a bill which he believes will do away with the legalizing work the general assembly has to do every term. It provides that every notary public, justice of the peace, or other officers of the state authorized by law to acknowledge deeds, mortgages or any other instruments, shall state in his certificates the time when his commission as such officer expires.

The democratic leaders in both houses are reaching the belief that this legislature will not pass a bill reducing or changing the number of judicial districts.

The talk in the legislature of returning the appointing power to the governor has caused a flood of applications to be sent to Governor Matthews by aspirants to positions in the various state institutions. So great has become the number of applications and letters of indorsement that every pigeon hole in the governor's desk is overflowing with the documents.

THEY NEARLY STARVED.

A Mother and Children Often Without Food.

Mrs. McSwayney Tells a Pitiful Story of Cruelty and Privation—The Affair in Court.

Newspaper reporters, by their daily recording of all manner of events, become in a measure indifferent to scenes and occurrences which would touch to the quick those whose daily life gives them but an occasional glance at the great world "behind the scenes."

This morning a SENTINEL representative's attention was called to a peculiarly sad case in Justice Ryan's court and one which caused more than a passing sentiment of pity. The case was that of Mrs. A. Y. McSwayney, of Bloomingdale, against whom charges had been preferred by her husband.

The charges sworn to against the unfortunate woman are that she is guilty of inhuman treatment towards her infant child by inflicting cruel punishment upon it and depriving it of maternal nourishment. The father alleges that his wife took an unnatural delight in abusing the little one and that it was in great danger of starving.

The warrant was served on the lady this morning. She was unaccustomed to the stern ways of the law and assured the constable that she would not run away. In fact the poor creature had no strength and could not escape if she had tried. She was told to appear at Justice Ryan's office at 9 o'clock and the constable told her she would not have to appear either handcuffed or with an officer of the law. Scantily clad and frail she started out in the storm to answer for her heinous (?) crime. She only knew of one 'squire's office in the city and she wearily climbed the stairs and entered Justice France's court. She told her mission and was informed that she had called at the wrong place. THE SENTINEL reporter happened in at that moment, and the lady having been kindly asked by the justice to remain a few moments and warm, consented to tell her story. It was indeed a pitiful one. She said: "George and I were married about four years ago and he began to abuse me very soon after we were married. He kicked and choked me many times. My life has been almost a hell on earth. You can see the marks upon my throat yet where he tried to strangle me only last week. This winter myself and children have almost starved, and if it had not been for the neighbors I don't know what we would have done. George has been working for the Nickel Plate railway and has made good wages, so I understand, but his family have never seen any of it. I have had him arrested several times for coming home drunk and abusing me, but he always left town to escape arrest. Do you think he would have done this had he not been guilty? This month he has been unusually cruel to me. Three days last week we did not have a mouthfull of food in the house excepting about a pint of molasses and a few crackers. He accuses me of not nursing the child. How can a woman who is on the verge of starvation nurse a little child? Although he drew $10 last week we never saw a cent of it and one of the neighbors gave me a few pennies with which I kept our souls and bodies together. I told George Saturday that I had suffered as much as I could stand and intended to go and work somewhere, if it was only for my board. After spending several days out in the cold, hunting a place, I found work with a kind hearted lady on Barr street—a Mrs. Boyers, who keeps a boarding house."

When asked if nothing had ever been done for her by charitable organizations she replied that the humane officer had called at the house once or twice but could do nothing toward getting her children from her husband. As the little ones seemed to be the only tie which bound her to her unhappy home she preferred to suffer rather than be separated from them.

Mrs. McSwayney is an unusually attractive woman, with a face which retained its youthful beauty despite the suffering which she has undergone. She is refined and ladylike.

During the morning Mrs. McSwayney swore to a complaint against her husband, charging him with cruelty and failure to provide, in Justice France's court, and this afternoon this case and the one brought against her by her husband is being tried before Justice Ryan. A number of witnesses have been subpoenaed on both sides.

Mr. McSwayney states as his side of the story that his wife is of an ugly disposition and has made their home what it is. He also states that she has thrown hammers and other heavy articles at him on different occasions.

MISTAKE OF A LIFE.

The Most Terrible Mistake Possible to Make.

And the Frightful Results Which Followed.

All Should be Careful to Avoid This Great Danger.

The world is careless.

And it is just this carelessness which constitutes the greatest element of danger.

From little things grow great things—a small beginning often results in an awful and disastrous ending.

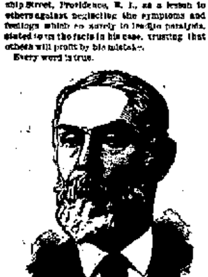
A gentleman well-known by us has just passed through an experience which perfectly demonstrates this. He began to have certain feelings which he could not explain. He grew languid and tired, felt weak, in fact, after any kind of exertion. He had headache, dizziness and his stomach and bowels troubled him. There was a sediment in his water. After a while he had numb spells, trembling feeling in his legs, arms and body. Then there came prickling sensations in his fingers and toes.

Suddenly he had a shock of paralysis.

For the simple reason that he had for months neglected, through ignorance of their real meaning and danger, the gradually growing symptoms of this awful disease.

This gentleman, who was no other than the well-known William T. Cox, Esq., of 187 Friendship Street, Providence, R. I., as a lesson to others against neglecting the symptoms and feelings which so surely to lead to paralysis, stated to us the facts in his case, trusting that others will profit by his mistake.

Every word is true.



WILLIAM T. COX.

"For two years I felt bad with headache, and seemed weak and tired at times. My bowels troubled me and at times my water was not what it should be.

"I did not take any medicine, but let myself alone and went on with my work.

"There is where I made the mistake of my life, for this bad feeling was followed by paralysis. I could do no work for two years. I was entirely helpless, could not walk, could not even feed myself.

"I heard of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and took it for six months, and am now cured.

"What a serious mistake it was not to take it before the shock of paralysis, and so prevent all danger.

"I am now 75 years old and feel young and strong."

If this proves a lesson to our people and results in those having these weak, tired and exhausted feelings and bad symptoms taking the wonderful medicine, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and so preventing the dread results, paralysis, insanity or nervous prostration, we shall feel that Mr. Cox's case has not been given publicity in vain. The remedy is purely vegetable and harmless, and is sold by druggists for $1. It is recommended by doctors because it is the discovery and prescription of the famous physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 W. 14th street, New York. The doctor is the most successful of our specialists in the cure of all forms of nervous and chronic diseases, and can be consulted without charge personally or by letter.

THE reported losses by fires in the United States and Canada during January reached the enormous aggregate of $17,958,400, the largest loss for that month during the past twelve years.

INVESTIGATION shows that according to the census about 4,000,000 citizens of the United States failed to vote at the late November election. Taken by states, it is shown that of this number 32 per cent. was in the south and 68 per cent. in northern states.

CONGRESSMAN MCNAGNY will start for Washington next week. He will remain until after the inauguration and longer if he can be of any service to his constituents. Mr. McNagny has been a very busy man since the election. He has been importuned on every hand by the place hunters.

ASTRONOMERS are looking forward to the 16th of April next, with more than ordinary interest. The astronomer of the New York Herald regards this total eclipse as one of exceptional importance at this time, inasmuch as "it occurs at a period when the solar fires are in extraordinary blast and the photosphere is convulsed by enormous cyclone-like spots." The eclipse will be visible in the comparatively cloudless regions of the Sahara and Chilian deserts, which Professor Todd deems "a very important consideration and one not likely to be so well fulfilled in any other eclipse for the next half century."

AS THE cabinet slate now stands the great group of northwestern states, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Wisconsin and Michigan, will have no representation in the cabinet. The two states that the republicans carried, Iowa and Michigan, might have had cabinet places if Governor Boies and Mr. Dickenson had accepted what was offered them. Governor Gray, of Indiana, will get something handsome, but it will not be a seat in the cabinet. Wisconsin might, perhaps, have had a cabinet office, but the logical candidate from that state was Mr. Wall and Senator Vilas was not for him. Illinois would have had a cabinet place if the opposition to Colonel Morrison had not been too strong. Mr. Cleveland has not entertained the idea of taking any other Illinois man into the cabinet. Mr. Goudy and Governor Altgeld and Speaker Crisp antagonized his appointment, so Mr. Cleveland scratched his name off the slate. If Wisconsin was not to have a cabinet place Senator Vilas did not care that the state of Illinois should; and that counted for something. There was also opposition from Henry Villard, who had no objection to Colonel Morrison's being appointed secretary of war, but who was opposed to his being secretary of the interior, and it was in the interior department that Mr. Cleveland intended to put him.

ONE of the most interesting exhibits at the world's fair will be made by the Norwegian government. It will be an old Viking ship, manned by a crew of Norwegian sailors, and will resemble in every respect the ships that the Norsemen sailed the world over many centuries ago. The voyage will be made to this country to prove by actual experiment that it was not at all improbable or a difficult thing for Lief Erickson to cross the ocean in one of these boats 1,000 years ago, as history now says he did. The vessel will reach this country about the middle of May, and a short time later will reach Chicago, after a passage through the Erie canal and the great lakes.

No Sunday Sittings.

Boston photographers are forbidden to work on Sundays any more. The city has so ordered, and the chief of police has notified the photographers that he will enforce the order. This action is seemingly the outcome of a general movement on the part of citizens of Boston, who have made many complaints concerning the matter. Whether it is that the beauty of the Bostonians is deteriorating sadly and they wish the matter kept quiet, or whether other reasons are back of the movement, is not now apparent. The chief of police is "surprised at the revelations" of the extent to which the law against Sunday work has been constantly violated, although others than Bostonians might think he should have had some knowledge of the facts. A notice has been circulated which embodies an act prohibiting all manner of work except that of necessity and charity, and likewise all manner of sports, games, plays, or other public diversion, and the chief of police says he will enforce the law. The photographers say their Sunday business has always been very heavy.

THEY are trying what they call a Good Will farm in Maine with a considerable degree of success. Bad boys are sent to it instead of to reform schools. On the farm they are separated, as far as possible, into groups in a number of cottages that have been erected. The idea is that in this way the boys may be subject to the beneficial influences of home life. The household work in each of these families is divided up among the boys, who also work on the farm or in shops. The same thing is to be tried in Massachusetts also. A farm has been bought in Danvers, on which it is proposed to care for five hundred homeless and destitute children. Its distinctive feature, the cottage system, might well be tried on a larger scale in other states in place of the great institutions in which so many boys and girls are huddled together.

CUBA'S use of United States products is increasing rapidly, and, as shown by the report for the first ten months of the trade for 1892, is driving European imports out of the market. Cuba's imports have consisted of jerked beef from South America, codfish from British North American provinces, flour from Spain, rice from the United States, Spain and the East Indies, wine and olive oil from Spain, boards for boxes and barrels from the United States, coal and petroleum from the United States, and manufactures and hardware from Great Britain, Belgium and Germany. But the United States' efforts to build up a trade in the island have been most successful, and this country has assumed the duty of supplying much hitherto sent in by foreign producers.

THERE is a saying somewhere to the effect that "nothing is ever lost." This will apply very well to an incident of the holiday trade in the east. A wholesale provision dealer of Brooklyn lost a car load of turkeys and chickens due from the west. The car had been side-tracked somewhere en route, so that when it was opened people standing about wanted to put clothes pins on their noses. The load of spoiled poultry would have been carted away to a fertilizer factory had not the owner received an offer from the proprietor of a canning establishment. He sold it with alacrity, and it is now on the market, strongly peppered, as deviled chicken and deviled turkey.

THE popular, and, indeed, the dictionary notion that "tick" as an equivalent for credit is a slang abbreviation of "ticket" is probably wrong, as there is strong evidence that "tick," in the sense referred to, is pure Hindustanee, as is "chit," the term for an "I. O. U.," commonly in use all over the east, and brought to the United States by American naval officers who have cruised in Oriental waters. "Chit" means in Hindustanee a small note. The custom, we are informed, of doing all things on credit is so common among the higher classes in the east that upon all ordinary occasions a known resident writes a chit instead of paying cash, just as a man does at his club in this country.

SENATOR PLATTE, of Connecticut, at the request of the governor of Alaska, has introduced in the senate a bill which, if it becomes law, will impose far stricter prohibition on Alaska than it has ever had before. It involves careful restrictions over druggists, forbids internal revenue collectors from issuing tax receipts to any who sell illegally and provides for summary detention and search of vessels on information furnished by anyone, and, if the vessel is found to be carrying liquor illegally, forfeiture both of the liquor and of the vessel. The new bill provides for the summary seizure of vessels smuggling in liquor.

A RECENT idiosyncrasy is that of the crank who has published a book of several hundred pages in which there is not a period or a paragraph. It sets forth a peculiar philosophy with no division of sentences but commas, semicolons and colons. This particular crank hails from Chicago.

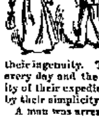
BEWARE OF THE CLASS

THE OCCUPATION OF THE PICKPOCKET THRIVES.

SOME OF THE LATEST GAMES OF THE "PROFESH."

Some Tales of Light-Fingered Pilferings in Crowded Street Cars—Women Who Operate as Pickpockets—Thomas Byrnes' Letter.



PICKPOCKETS are perhaps the most interesting of all rogues, for the reason that everyone is likely to come into contact with them at any time. Another thing about them which renders them interesting is their ingenuity. This crops up almost every day and the marvelous versatility of their expedients is only equaled by their simplicity.

A man was arrested recently whose system illustrates this admirably. He, like nearly all male pickpockets, was well dressed and wore a handsome diamond pin. His habit was to board a crowded car with his gloves on, but his left one unfastened. He would stand on the rear platform sizing up the crowd and pretending to exert himself in fastening his left glove. Unable to manage it he would turn to the man he had selected as his victim and say:

"Pardon me, but would you oblige me by fastening my glove?"

At the same time he would extend the hand, taking care that the arm be well covered by the cape of his coat. While the obliging stranger fastens the glove the pickpocket's right hand is engaged in abstracting his watch. Such a man works with a confederate, to whom he passes the watch. The confederate promptly leaves the car, while the principal remains for several blocks.

Female pickpockets invariably use cloaks to shield them while stealing. They are the most dangerous thieves, because the most patient. They always dress plainly and unobtrusively. But it will be found that they are always enshrouded in a voluminous cloak or shawl. They work alone and are difficult to detect because of their craftiness. A man is almost sure to "blow in" the proceeds of his haul. Not so with a woman. She will not dispose of an article of jewelry for months, or even years, if there is the slightest risk attending its sale. If she has stolen money she will use it carefully and so as not to attract attention to herself. Superintendent Byrnes is fond of telling a story about a woman who stole a bag containing many thousands of dollars, and who entered a religious institution immediately after, remaining concealed there until the death of her victim made it safe for her to reappear and again ply her old trade.

There is only one way of picking a pocket; that is to insert your hand into the pocket. Sometimes great dexterity has to be used in doing this. Here is a favorite method now in use among the gentry who work the crowded cars. Two men work together. One ascertains who is to be robbed and from which pocket the booty is to be taken. This needs delicacy of touch. He first selects the victim, then he gets alongside him, and by rapidly passing his hands over his pockets, locates the purse, pocketbook or roll of bills. The car is crowded and the victim is not suspicious of the jostling he receives. Most men carry their money in their left trousers pocket, thinking that no man can get his hand in there without being detected. The victim selected and the prize located, the second man places himself squarely in front of him. The first crowds up behind him on the right side. The operator, his arm concealed by a coat or cloak, passes his hand carefully over the lips of the pocket. If the man to be robbed is standing straight the lips of the pocket are drawn close together and it is dangerous to attempt the insertion of the hand.

A FEMALE PICKPOCKET.

A code of signals is arranged for this emergency. A low-toned clearing of the throat signals the confederate to exert a light pressure upon the victim's right shoulder. This is done very gradually and is so imperceptible that the man yields to it unconsciously, slowing turning his body without moving his feet. This causes the lips of the pocket to open. The operator then pulls the lining of the pocket out inch by inch with his thumb and forefinger. When the roll of bills is within reach of the fingers it is quietly withdrawn and passed instantly to the confederate, who leaves the car directly, while the operator remains. Should the traveler feel the abstraction of the pocket lining a low clearing of the throat is a signal to drop the game. Success is announced by a gentle chirrup. Watches and pins are simple things to steal. The usual method of "nipping" a watch is to use a pair of hard, strong steel pincers with which the heaviest chain is cut. But there is a peculiar twist of the thumb and forefinger, known to every pickpocket, by means of which the watch ring is twisted off.

In a street car the watch is raised from its pocket by means of the chain, the operator's hand being concealed by a newspaper or the cape of a coat. The ring is twisted off by a sharp turn of the fingers and the watch falls into the palm of the operator's hand. The chain is allowed to drop.

A man was recently arrested for stealing a valuable diamond pin. His method was to read a newspaper while standing in a crowded car. This paper he held high enough to conceal the pin from the eyes of the man who wore it. A confederate attracted the attention of the victim, by falling into a lady's lap. As the victim glanced around the operator raised a little pair of forceps, by means of which he gently twitched the pin from the man's scarf, caught in his hand and passed it to a confederate. In this particular case a man sitting in the car happened to see the whole operation and the rogue was caught.

Another crook has a stick with a crook in the handle ingeniously made so as to enable him to twist a jeweled pin from a lady's bonnet. This is so rapidly done that the woman is unconscious of her loss until she takes off her hat at home.

LIFTING A LADY'S HAT PIN.

Women are the best robbers of women. They know where to look for pockets and how to get at them expeditiously. One woman has a system of her own which she has brought to perfection. She uses a long pair of sharp shears. With these she clips the pocket out of a woman's dress. It falls to the ground with all its contents and the thief picks it up and loses herself in the crowd.

By working it up gradually from the outside a celebrated pickpocket took a large and well-filled wallet from the inside breast pocket of a man's frock coat. The coat was tightly buttoned and over it was an ulster, also closed. The pocketbook was worked up until its corner was visible above the lapel of the owner's coat. A confederate called the victim's attention by creating a disturbance in the car and being ejected from it. In the confusion that ensued the wallet was turned so as to free it entirely from the pocket. Then it was gradually pushed down until it was about to drop to the floor. There it was left until the victim moved to leave the car. Then, as he pushed through the crowd, doing his own jostling, the wallet fell and he did not notice it. The thief dropped the newspaper he was reading and in picking it up raised the wallet, which instantly disappeared under the cape of his overcoat.

A FIGHT IN COURT.

A Kansas Judge Leaves the Bench to Resent an Insult.

A sensational scene was enacted in a Kansas court the other day. It was at Wichita where Judge Reed averted a riot by leaving the bench and engaging in a hand to hand fight with Oscar Sanders. The latter came out second best. As the story goes Mrs. Sanders had been granted a divorce from her husband, the manager of the Sanders Transportation Company, after a long trial, and the court was hearing the arguments of counsel on the disposition of the only child, a boy 3 years old. Wearied with long attendance upon court and the excitement of the day, Mrs. Sanders fainted. While she was being carried out of the crowded court-room the husband seized the child and started for the door. He was intercepted by a brother of Mrs. Sanders. The bailiff not being present Judge Reed ran down and grappled with the maddened father, who fought like a demon, but he was no match for the doughty Judge, who choked him down into a chair, delivered the child to its grandmother and resumed court. A ripple of applause ran over the court-room, but the Judge rapped for order and postponed further consideration of the case until his blood cooled down to its normal condition.

YAWN ALL YOU PLEASE.

A Doctor Says It Is One of the Best of Nature's Remedies.

According to current ideas yawning in good society is an improper sign of weariness; according to the teachings of physiology, it is a long-drawn, forcible inspiration followed by a shorter respiration according to Dr. Naegeli. It is one of nature's many remedies, the proper application of which depends upon good judgment.

In yawning, not only the muscles which move the lower jaw are used, but also the breathing muscles of the chest, and he who yawns to his heart's content also raises and extends the arms. In the deepest inspiration the chest remains extended for a short time, the eyes are almost or entirely closed, the ears somewhat raised, the nostrils dilated. Inside the mouth, the tongue becomes round and arched, the palate stiffly stretched, and the uvula is raised, almost entirely closing the space between the nose and throat. At the beginning of the inspiration a cracking noise is heard in the ears, a proof that the duct leading to the hearing also succumbs to this stretching.

If the yawning has reached the deepest point it will require from one to one and a half seconds for it to become noticeable to the hearing. In order to observe this, let one place himself at a sufficient distance from a clock, so that its ticking will not be easily heard, and yawn deeply. During this deep breathing the sound of the clock is not perceptible to the most careful listening. All this simply goes to show that yawning sets a number of muscles to work, and particularly those which are not directly subject to the will.

Although one yawning does not present a very agreeable appearance, it is very agreeable to himself, for the stretching of the muscles causes a feeling of comfort; it acts like massage, and is the most natural gymnastics of the lungs imaginable. Dr. Naegeli, therefore, advises people not to concern themselves with so-called decency, but every morning and evening, and as often as possible, to exercise the lungs and all the muscles of respiration by yawning and stretching, as many chronic lung troubles may thus be prevented.

Dr. Naegeli orders the patient troubled with too much wax in the ear, accompanied with pain, to yawn often and deeply. The pain will soon disappear. He also, in the case of nasal catarrh, inflammation of the palate, sore throat and earache, orders the patient as often as possible during each day to yawn from six to ten times successively, and immediately afterwards to swallow. The result will be surprising. If one looks upon yawning as a natural massage for certain organs he will reach a satisfactory explanation of its curative properties.—Berlin Unsere Zeit.

EXPRESSION OF LOVE.

Herein Lies the Keynote to the Happiness of a Home.

More people grow apart just from the absence of honest expression of feeling than from hard words. Pride is an excellent thing to possess when not applied wrongly. But it has been death to more tender ties than the world will ever know of. Tenderness costs so little, and yet, given here and there as we journey along, is invaluable in the good it may do. I once heard a young woman say: "We never quarrel in our family." I found upon further inquiry that excess of politeness which often acts as a barrier to real feeling. They occupied the same house truly, they observed all the outward form that courtesy demanded, but they absolutely knew nothing of the inner lives of the family group. The fact of no little squabbles occurring is no proof of home unity. Excessive courtesy between members of one family is death to intimacy. It places your home life on a plane with your social life. One's true self should be lived out in the home. Loving freedom, blended with frankness, is the keynote to home happiness.

There are many homes to-day that hold a vacant chair due solely to the fact that no special interest was ever taken in this member of the family, no affectionate encouragement given, no loving inquiry as to his success or doings. Some natures require all this, and not to get it crushes out all the good that may be in them. We all need some to care for us—to love us, to spur us on to higher and better things. The knowledge that our success means happiness to another is sweeter to us than any reward we may gain. Let your heart speak truly. Don't crush out all the good that is in you. Carry sunshine wherever you go. It is easily done. Kinds words only are needed, loving praise given when merited, cordial enthusiasm for the work of another. If you love your friends, tell them so; if not in words, then by proofs undeniable, of thoughtful consideration and sweet attentions that help to brighten life. We all like to be admired, to hear kind things said of us, to be loved. Then why deny others the delight of enjoying the same? It is a sin to smother the honest promptings of our hearts. If we properly direct our affections they elevate us.—Detroit Free Press.

EBB AND FLOW OF THE SEA.

Is the Commotion of the Waters Caused by the Army of Drowned Dead?

Do you know why the sea ebbs and flows? 'Tis this: The army of drowned twice daily gather their forces at the bottom of the deep and march toward the four points of the compass to lay their weary bones on earth and escape from their watery tomb. You can hear their tramping—they call it sea moaning—and see the waves being pushed on before them in great water hills, which dash against each other in their furious flight from the escaping host; and when they break and hurl clouds of snow white spray high in air it is caused by the lashings from the swinging, bony arms of the army drowned. And did you ever listen to the weird noise as these mountains of water leap up on each other?

That is the cry of the victims of the sea.

On and on the waves are driven, farther and further they encroach on land and the feet of the mighty body can be heard scraping for foothold on the smooth, shifting pebbles. Only another incoming wave and escape is theirs—but it is just too late; the wasted undertow sets in and you hear their bony feet slip from under them; and back they are carried, the sea holding them tightly in its arms, exhausted captives.

Then look, when the tide has run far out, and see the prints of their feet, and you will know why the sea ebbs and flows.—N. Y. Herald.

Trees of the National Capital.

Washington city contains in its streets and squares over seventy thousand trees, although the work of systematic planting was not begun until 1872. There are three hundred and thirty little parks at the intersections of the streets and avenues, besides the great consolidated government reservation extending westward from the capitol to the Washington monument, two miles away. About seventy-five thousand dollars annually is expended by the government and the district of Columbia in planting and caring for trees. —Chicago Herald.

A FINE ENTERTAINMENT.

The Emmett Dramatic Club at the Temple Last Night.

Every seat in the Temple was filled last evening by an audience eager to witness the long promised presentation of "Down the Black Canyon," by the Emmett club.

No one would have accused Fort Wayne of having unappreciative audiences had he heard the round after round of applause which greeted the players.

The play was a surprise to the friends of the young men who took part. D. J. KcKendry, as Hiram Sprigg, the eccentric bard, was good. Will Rohan, as the heavy villain, acted his part in an excellent manner. His voice and make up were well fitted for the part. W. H. Bensman, a young mining engineer, and A. D. Benedist, as a mine owner, made a decided hit. Among the other stars were P. E. Brennihan, F. A. Manuel, F. J. Fry, L. J. Hudy, Theodore Dodane, W. J. Murphy, John Salmon, J. J. Duffy, F. T. McEvoy, Joseph Haley, Fred Noll, Joseph Biemer and Louis Schleman.

Miss Marie Young, of Auburn, Ind., sang some excellent solos and received an ovation.

Fruit House Prices for 1893.

There has taken place some remarkable revolutions in the prices of merchandise the past year, and which is most likely to continue for some time to come. As a rule the tendency, with the exception of pork and potatoes, has favored the consumer. Flour is remarkably cheap. With flour at [illegible] per bbl. and potatoes at [illegible] per bushel, it is easily determined which is the most economical. Flour, in such instances, will be much more used than formerly. So is pork and beef. When pork reaches the price it has now, beef will be used more.

ORGANIZED LABOR.

D. F. Kennedy, a Labor Orator, Talks on the Subject.

Accidents, Incidents and Personal Mention of the People About the Railway Centers.

D. F. Kennedy, of Indianapolis, who has spoken in this city on several occasions, addressed a large meeting of laboring men at Muncie Tuesday evening. In the course of his remarks he said: "There are a great many kings in this world who do not occupy thrones or belong to the royal family. They have money, they are capitalists, and are, in fact, the money kings. Most of them are opposed to organized labor, because the men desire to earn an honest living and ask good wages for work done. What is the result of money on one side and labor on the other? Oppression of the laboring classes, providing they do not organize and protect their interests and the interests of their family. Organized labor is growing stronger day by day and is holding her own. Organized labor is not anarchy, although many persons think so. Organized labor is to help all laborers along and see that they are paid well for their work. There is great want among laboring men, although it is not shown in all places. A good skilled laborer makes excellent wages. Unskilled laborers make, practically, a mere pittance. Now, take two thirds of the skilled labor and all the unskilled labor and the average yearly wages paid to each will average but $300. Think of living on that amount. To figure closely we will say there are five in each family. A man receiving $300 per year can buy but three five cent loaves of bread per day, two pounds of ten cent meat per day, and the following articles per week: Two pounds of oleomargarine, one pound lard, one pound six cent sugar, one peck potatoes, one pound twenty-five cent coffee and two dollars for rent. This takes the entire salary and leaves no money with which to buy clothes, etc.; hence, you can all see that if all United States laborers would organize and learn their various trades, higher wages could be commanded and more necessities and luxuries purchased."

Van Cleary has returned from Wheeling, W. Va., where he went some time ago in the interest of the Electric Light company.

John Wilhelm has recovered from an attack of rheumatism and this morning returned to his work in the Pittsburg planing mills after an absence of a week.

C. M. Heald, general manager of the Detroit, Lansing and Northern railroad, came from Pittsburg this morning on No. 3 and took the Grand Rapids for his home.

Yesterday the long looked for material for six class X engines arrived at the Pittsburg shops. The work of building the locomotives will now go rapidly forward.

Captain R. H. Harrison, who has been confined to his room by neuralgia and rheumatism for some time, in addition to his other ailments is now suffering with la grippe.

Dr. J. M. Kells, medical examiner for the Pennsylvania Volunteer Relief association, now has sixty-two names on the sick and accident list. This is an unusually large number.

Yesterday a car load of fine finished lumber left the Rhinesmith & Simonson factory for Hartford City, where it will be used in the construction of Banker H. B. Smith's house now under way.

The Vandalia depot at South Bend was badly damaged by fire Sunday morning. Although the building is not totally destroyed it is not improbable that it may give place to an elegant modern depot.

A party of fourteen, among them Messrs. Ferguson and Schuykill, members of the Carnegie Steel and Iron works, were passengers on the Pittsburg passenger train No. 5 this morning, bound for California.

The following Pittsburg trainmen, recently on the sick list, reported for duty this morning: Engineers J. R. Long, J. M. Dickson, P. Keegan and G. W. Kensill, Firemen P. H. Ryan, R. H. Craig, J. E. Stump, N. Reilley and H. Young.

While working about an engine in the Pittsburg machine shop this morning P. S. Wood had the middle finger of his right hand mashed. Dr. Will Stemen was called and after bandaging the hand, took Mr. Wood down to the office, where his finger was amputated at the first joint.

Engineer Theodore Titus, who was taken violently ill at Nevada, Ohio, while out on his run, on December 21, is now able to be out on the streets. He was down town yesterday for the first time in six weeks. Mr. Titus has hosts of friends, all of whom will rejoice over his recovery.

Engineer B. C. Skinner has the honor of bringing the Columbian express into Fort Wayne one time for the first time since the new schedule went into effect. This important event occurred this morning. The train left Crestline a few minutes late, but made up the time before this city was reached.

The blacksmiths in the Pittsburg shops this morning commenced getting out the iron part of ninety-eight emergency cars, which will be used during the world's fair as passenger cars and afterwards be converted into flat and gondola cars. The seats and covers to the cars will be made at Columbus, Ohio.

John C. Hensley, of Anderson, has brought a $10,000 suit against the Big Four Railroad company on account of the death of his eighteen-year-old son, who was killed last December while employed as a brakeman in the yards at Alexandria. The plaintiff alleges carelessness on the part of other trainmen as the cause of his death.

William Leach was a caller at the Pittsburg boiler shops yesterday. Four months ago he had one of his eyes badly burned by a hot scale of iron. For some time it was feared he would lose both eyes, but Dr. Seaton has succeeded in saving the sight of one, and now Mr. Leach is thinking about returning to his work again soon.

A dispatch from New York gives a lengthy statement to the effect that the Vanderbilts have secured control of the New York and New England, and will operate it with the Harlem road as a new route between New York and Boston, being but four miles longer than the New York, New Haven and Hartford and the Boston and Albany line.

John Nolan is again laid up with his lame knee. About six weeks ago Mr. Nolan injured the knee by a fall, and although the wound has never entirely healed, he has been working for the past two weeks. This morning, however, his limb became so painful that he was obliged to go home. Mr. Nolan is one of the veteran machinists in the Pittsburg shops.

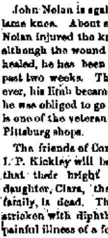
The friends of Conductor and Mrs. I. P. Kickley will be pained to learn that their bright little six-year-old daughter, Clara, the youngest of the family, is dead. The little one was stricken with diphtheria and after a painful illness of a few days, closed her eyes in death yesterday afternoon. The funeral, which was private, occurred at 3 o'clock this afternoon, from the family residence, corner of Webster and DeWald streets.

The New York Central has nearly completed the largest passenger engine ever built in this or any other country. It will be eighty-seven and one-half feet long. Its axles are ten inches in diameter and its cylinders twenty by twenty-six inches. Its weight in running order will be ninety-four tons, and it is expected to make eighty-two miles an hour in regular service.

"Quit drinking whisky and beer or quit the service of the company," is the mandate which is being sent out to trainmen who are known to have a liking for the beverage. The railway companies mean business and the employes realize that fact, hence there are many who have thus been induced to quit drinking who under different circumstances might have continued on in that line until nothing short of a sojourn at a "jag" institute would stop them.

Nickel Plate freight train No. 37 met with an accident at Ober, sixty miles west of this city, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, which ditched the engine, No. 173, and derailed several cars. While the train was running at the rate of twenty miles an hour the engine struck a sled loaded with logs on a crossing just west of Ober. Engineer J. W. Stackhouse and his fireman jumped and escaped with a few trifling bruises. The engine went down a fifteen foot embankment.

The three little children of Conductor and Mrs. A. K. Makepiece, of 71 West Fourth street, narrowly escaped death by asphyxiation yesterday afternoon. Some alterations in the gas pipes had just been completed and Mrs. Makepiece left the children for a few moments to run over to the grocery. The connections in the pipes were imperfect and when the lady returned home she was horrified to find her little ones lying unconscious on the floor of the sitting room and the house filled with gas. Dr. Myers was called and the children soon revived and are now about as well as ever. Mr. Makepiece is employed on the Nickel Plate.



Removed—every vestige of Catarrh in the Head, no matter how bad the case, or of how long standing, by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Not only Catarrh itself, but all the troubles that come from it—they're perfectly and permanently cured by its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties.

If you could only be sure of that, it's enough.

The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Remedy try to prove it to you. They are sure enough of it—a record of 25 years, with thousands of the most hopeless cases, has satisfied them—but how can they prove it to you? There's no better way than, with money. So, they say this, and they mean it: "If we can't cure your Catarrh, no matter what your case is, we'll pay you $500 in cash." There's a chance that you can't be cured, but it's so small that we're willing to take it.

What more can they say or do to convince you? Isn't that enough?

GOVERNMENT DEFIED.

Little Jessie Friend Does Not Fear Federal Grand Jury.

Charged With Being Implicated With Counterfeiters—She Refuses to Give Any Information.

[Yesterday's Indianapolis News.]

An eleven-year-old girl has openly defied the United States government; has snapped her fingers and said she did not care a little copper cent for Uncle Sam and his minions. Her name is Jessie Friend, and her home is at Fort Wayne. Several weeks ago Chief Carter arrested several persons in that city for passing counterfeit money, and among them was Jessie, who had disposed of $22 in a single square. She told the officer a great many fairy stories, and led him a merry chase until he found out that she was telling untruths, and brought her to this city and placed her in the reformatory until she could be used as a witness. Yesterday afternoon she was taken before the United States grand jury, but refused to give any testimony. The penalty of her refusal was explained to her and then she said she would tell them something. And she did. So utterly preposterous were her statements considered that Assistant District Attorney Cockrum stopped her with the declaration that she knew she was not telling the truth.

"Well, I have to lie to keep up with the rest of you people," she said insolently.

During the investigation she walked the room, laughed in the jurors' faces and repeated a story of depravity that the oldest man in the room had never heard equalled. But she furnished no information, and as she walked out of the room she said:

"That's all right, gents. I'll die before I'll give my kin folks away."

In the hallway she greeted Detective Carter with the remark: "There is the worst two-cent liar on earth."

Mr. Carter said that in his long experience with criminals he had never met with anything like the girl. She had evidently been trained by a Fagin, and well trained at that. She refused to furnish the government any information, and said she would stand any punishment that could be inflicted upon her. The officials at the reformatory say she is the most incorrigible person that was ever placed in the institution.

The grand jury today is considering the cases of the other alleged counterfeiters in jail. The case of Theodore Robbins is up today. Robbins lives at Auburn. A woman, once his wife, told the officers about some molds for silver dollars in his possession.

For several weeks bogus silver dollars have been in circulation here and the authorities were unable to find out who made them. Chief Carter today says the coin was made by Jim Fox, who is under arrest. He does not believe the coin was molded in this city, but was shipped here by Fox to his confederates who passed it.

The grand jury will look after violations of the revenue laws in the gambling rooms closely. William Tron was notified to appear last night and today subpenas were issued for the proprietors of all similar places in the city.

Embarrassed for Herself.

Mrs. Gossip—There, I've told you all, but it is a secret and you mustn't tell it to any one.

Mrs. Tawker—Can't I mention it to Mrs. Gadder next door?

Mrs. G.—Gracious no!

Mrs. T.—Why not?

Mrs. G.—Because I want to tell her myself.

A Witty Customer

Went to a drug store and asked for SOZODONT. The storekeeper said: "We're out of that, but here is something just as good." The practical customer said, "No you don't," and walked out to a neighboring store and got a bottle of SOZODONT.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE.

An Aeronaut Up in a Balloon During a Thunderstorm.

"Of all imaginable balloon experiences the most terrific is to be found within the limits of a violent thunderstorm. Like most others, I believed that a balloon could easily rise above such a terrific thing as that, so one day, when the good folk of Burlington, Ia., turned out and kissed their hands and fluttered their handkerchiefs as my balloon rose in the face of a fast-approaching storm, I was not at all concerned as to the consequences.

"The thunder growled and vivid flashes of lightning showed plainly enough what was coming. It soon became apparent that the balloon was bound to meet the storm half way, and yet it was rising so fast that it seemed sure to go clear. But somehow the higher clouds reached over and took the balloon in out of sight. The clouds flashed momentarily with crimson fire and the thunder's tones were booming like the cannon's roar. The barometer still showed increasing height, but I began to feel uneasy and kept looking upward for a break in the clouds, until at last it began to grow lighter, and I thought that in a moment more the balloon would be soaring high above the danger. There was just then an ominous stillness in the air, followed by an appalling explosion that streaked the clouds with blinding electric fire and snatched the balloon away at cannon-ball speed—strange that it was not torn to fragments. The air was rushing, tossing and turning it about like a leaf, flirting the car from side to side so violently that there actually seemed to be danger of its being thrown clear over the balloon, and I hastily caught to a hanging rope and tied myself in. To add to the misery of the situation the gas had expanded at the very first to overflowing and continued pouring down in volumes on my head. I held the valve open constantly but it seemed to have no effect, and for a while suffocation appeared almost certain. From the moment of the first seizure there was no respite; one explosion followed another in quick succession; every moment the electric fluid was darting hither and thither, while escape from fire with such a body of inflammable gas seemed impossible. All effort to escape seemed fruitless, until a collapse of the cloud occurred immediately overhead, when the torrent of rain carried the balloon down with it. From the scene of commotion to the earth was a distance of two miles, through which the balloon swiftly descended. The storm still raged above, but the rain clearing the cloud in white lines all above me was the only apparent movement during the descent. It was a restful lull after the frightful confusion, but I knew there was more to come. A raging tempest is not the gentlest conductor to a safe harbor, and as the clouds opened a sight met my eye that was not at all consoling. I was pitching pell-mell into a forest that was thrashing wildly in the storm of wind and rain. There was no halting or indecision about the matter. Right down into the woods the car went, and through the tops of a half a dozen trees; then the collapsing cord had done its work. The netting caught in the branches and the car fell by easy jerks to within a foot of the ground. Stepping out on terra firma, I caught a piece of torn balloon that came floating down, and, drawing it over my head, sat down upon a stump to wait until the rain was over. There was little left of the balloon, but the man was just as good as ever.—Prof. S. A. King, in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

TOYS OF TWO EMPERORS.

The Dolls That Amused Napoleon III. and a Czar's Puppet Soldiers.

The recent discovery at Buckingham palace of the dolls which the queen dressed as a child has caused almost as much interest on the continent as in this country. The French especially have been struck with the idea that "this woman of seventy-three, covered with glory, queen of a happy England and empress of a peaceful India," should again let her eyes rest upon the toys with which she played more than sixty years ago.

Another fact in connection with the queen's dolls, on which French newspapers love to dwell, is that her majesty has shown an interest in the dolls which, in the words of one French chronicler, looks almost as if she would have liked to be left alone with her beloved toys and take once more into her arms the ugly, old-fashioned dolls.

Curiously enough, the last emperor of the French had an army of dolls, which in many respects were like those of the queen. Instead of shepherdesses and sleeping beauties, however, the dolls of Napoleon III. were all soldiers, each one representing a regiment in the French army, and each a perfect model in every way. It was quite by chance this army of military dolls was started. One winter night, M. Fremiet, the artist, was passing the Tuileries, where a ball was going on. Outside, at the gate, he saw a mounted artilleryman on guard, and was so struck with the motionless figure in the snow-covered square that next morning he made a clay model of it. M. de Nieuwekerke saw it, told the emperor of it and caused a series of similar statuettes to be made, each representing a different type of soldier. Napoleon III. presently inquired, somewhat to the sculptor's consternation, whether the clay models could not be colored. They would then, he added, be quite perfect. After some difficulty this was accomplished, and the miniature regiment was pronounced "quite perfect."

The noble army of imperial dolls was not, however, destined to a long life, and the work which it had taken the sculptor over ten years to complete was almost destroyed in a single day. One morning the late prince imperial, then a child, was playing with young Fleury in the room where his father's toy soldiers were kept under glass. His tutor gave permission to the boys to play with them, and the son of the emperor led one-half of the number against the rest, which were headed by the son of the general. In half an hour's time the army of statuettes had ceased to exist.

Nicholas I., czar of all the Russias, was another of the sovereigns who had a leaning towards toy soldiers. When, in 1830, he made changes in the uniform of the Russian army, he had the new apparel of each regiment drawn by the cleverest artists in the country. Next, forty figures were ordered to be constructed by the leading sculptors, and uniforms were then made after the water-color drawings to fit the puppets. It was thus that the great Nicholas studied the effect of the new uniforms. Later on the figures were placed in large cases with glass doors in the emperor's study at Krasnoe-Selo, where they may still be seen.—Pall Mall Budget.

—A Great Surprise. "Madam," said a lusty fellow at the theater, "will you be kind enough to take your hat off so I can see the stage?" "With pleasure," she said, smiling radiantly, but it was too late; the surprise was too great for him and he had fainted away.—Detroit Free Press.

—If the man who goes into a restaurant ten minutes before the regular time for closing expects to enjoy his supper, he can't intend to notice how the girl who waits on his table looks.

A DISTRESSING SIGHT.

A Woman and Her Child Freezing in the Streets of Pittsburg.

A pathetic story comes from Pittsburg, Pa. In a police station there the other night were sheltered a young woman and her babe. They had been taken from the street by officers who found them famishing with cold and hunger. The woman was shivering with cold and holding her child to her breast to keep it warm. She gave her name as Mrs. Tillie Gardner, her age as 20 years, and her home as Jamestown, N. Y. Some time ago her husband, who is a painter, went West to get work. A week ago she received word that he was lying sick at Altoona. She immediately used what money she had to purchase a ticket to reach his side. Arriving at Altoona she was informed that her husband had left for home and that she and her babe had passed him on the way. Being in a strange city and penniless she was advised to apply to the city authorities for transportation home, which she did. But instead of sending her to Jamestown they forwarded her to Pittsburg. The babe is 20 months old. The mother was nursing it in the bitter cold of the street, where she had fallen, being too cold and weak to stand. The infant was insensible and was restored to consciousness with considerable difficulty. After the mother and her babe recovered from the effects of the cold they were sent home by the Pittsburg poor authorities.

CLASS "F" STOCK IN THE TRI-STATE.

The Tri-State has recently added a new class of stock known as class "F." Its advantages are:

1. No membership fee is charged.
2. No fines are inflicted if payments are not made monthly.
3. No special amount need be paid regularly nor at any special date.

For instance you may pay in $1, or $5, or $10, or $25, or any other sum any time in December and if you choose skip one, two or three or more months before you pay in any more; when you may resume your payments, paying in just as rapidly or just as slowly as you please.

You will be credited with six per cent. annual interest on each payment from the time it is made.

When this interest and the payments you have made amount to $100 per share, your shares of class "F" stock have matured and you receive $100 for each share of stock you hold.

Upon receiving your money you may, if you desire, invest it in the "Paid Up" stock of the company, which pays you an annual dividend of six per cent., payable every six months.

The money you pay in on class "F" stock may be withdrawn at any time, including all interest that has accrued up to date of withdrawal. In other words you need not leave your money with the association until your stock matures unless you desire to do so.

For the past few days certain members of the new Fort Wayne club have been in an unpleasant frame of mind. The trouble originated from a misunderstanding of the rules of the club upon the part of certain other members. It seems that the iron clad rule which bars every male resident of the city, not a member, from the privileges of the club, has been violated. The board of governors met last night and in the future it is said that there will be no violation of this rule. S. C. Lombard was added to the house committee and Mr. Ranke tendered his resignation as secretary.

THEY WON TEXAS FOR US

Fort Wayne and Allen County in the War With Mexico.

Two of Our Companies Were in the Field—Their Home-Leaving, Their Journey and Their Return.

THE love of country has ever been a prominent feature in the characters of the citizens of Fort Wayne and Allen county and when the war cloud came upon the nation they were always first to rush to the rescue of the flag of their country. This they did, as narrated in an article in THE SENTINEL a few days ago, during the war of the rebellion, and the same spirit and conduct characterized them during our war with Mexico.

At the first call for volunteers two companies were raised in Allen county, one by Capt David W. Lewis and the other by Capt. John McLain, and their services were tendered to the governor, when they were ordered to report at New Albany in this state to join the other companies of the First Indiana regiment, which was organized for an enlistment of one year.

It was on the morning of the 16th day of June, 1846, that they marched to the canal and there took passage on boats for Cincinnati and from thence went by steamboat to New Albany. Their departure, their trip and their service in the war is thus described by Col. J. B. Dodge, of Warsaw, some time before his death, two years ago.

A long procession of parents, friends and sweethearts followed the boats to the "Lower Dock," as it was called, five miles east of Fort Wayne, where they bid them an adieu and returned to their homes. Upon the arrival of the companies at New Albany they were mustered into service and assigned to the First Regiment, under the command of Col. J. P. Drake. On the 24 day of July the regiment embarked for New Orleans and at that city took a steamer for the seat of war.

For a few days they did guard duty at the mouth of the Rio Grande river and then they were ordered to the front, which at that time was at Saltillo. Here they remained for a time, when they marched to Monterey, where they met General Taylor and with the entire army went into camp. They remained at this place until the period of service for which they had been mustered in had nearly expired when the regiment was ordered to Camargo, where they embarked on a steamboat and went to the mouth of the Rio Grande river and marched thence to Brazos Springs and there took passage in a fast sailing steamer for New Orleans, where they arrived on June 17th, 1847. They there re-embarked on the same steamboat that had taken them down about a year before and the two companies were landed at Cincinnati not many days afterward. They at once took passage for home on canal boats, and reaching Fort Wayne were greeted with warm manifestations of joy and welcome.

The muster roll of only one of the companies is obtainable, that of company F., commanded by Captain Lewis, and it was as follows:

Captain—David W. Lewis.

First Lieutenant—Brad B. Stevens.

Second Lieutenant — Samuel H. Chapman and Wm. Hunter.

Sergeant—David W. Magee, John Keiser, Peter McGowan and Daniel Edgerly.

Corporal—William Truder, David Eades, Abijah A. Cox and Moses U. Ross.

Privates—Peter Bayler, John A. Bower, Simpkin Butt, Neely Sango, Michael Bixler, Thomas Cornelius, Charles Clinestaith, James L. Doddard, Joseph D. Evans, David Foley, Daniel Fox, Charles Huntington, Simon Hamilton, Andrew Holinger, Thomas Hurley, John R. Heaton, James B. Leach, Clinton Lafavour, John McMahon, Cornelius Martin, Watson Moore, Isaac R. Norman, Kennedy O'Brien, William Rozell, Charles Rozell, Levi Ross, Perry Spratt, Laughlin Thomas, George A. Tingley, William Thompson, John Wireman, Geo. W. Williams, Gibson Watkins, Enos P. Wiley, John Russell, Jonathan DeWitt, E. R. Eastman, Thomas Renge, Joseph Dinkee, Simon H. Gillespie, John L. Gifford, Charles Hartman, Joseph Kibble, Michael Lear, John Irvin, Charles Moore, Lemuel James, Samuel Ninde, Wallace M. Sutton, David G. Warren, Marshal Violet, John Weller, Albert F. Royce, Isaac B. Roswell, John G. Greer, Dennis Keaton, Alexander Kirkleg, Anson Lawrence, Francis Monelly, Ebenezer Roswell, George W. Frye.

The other company was commanded by Capt. John McLain. His first lieutenant was Thomas Lewis, and his second lieutenants Charles Colerick and George Humphreys.

After the muster out and discharge of these two companies, in October, 1847, another call for volunteers was made, and company K of the Fifth Indiana regiment was organized and departed for the seat of the war, but when they reached Mexico the conflict was practically over and they saw no service, outside of garrison duty, returning home in July of the following year. It was officered as follows: Captain, D. W. Lewis; first lieutenant, Thomas K. Lewis; second lieutenants, John B. Sawtell and Ira G. Williamson; Sergeant, Jos. K. Weaks, Geo. A. Gorman, Albert West, Luther Swartwout; corporals, James Baxter, David Coleman, John P. Bales, Israel Hosner.

REFORMING A PARROT.

The Scheme Did Not Work in an English Parish.

A Pittsburger who spent a part of last summer in England tells an incident which sadly disturbed the religious peace of a parish in Penzance.

A maiden lady of that town owned a parrot, which somehow acquired the disagreeable habit of observing, at frequent intervals:

"I wish the old lady would die."

This annoyed the bird's owner, who spoke to her curate about it.

"I think we can rectify the matter," replied the good man. "I also have a parrot, and he is a righteous bird, having been brought up in the way he should go. I will lend you my parrot, and I trust his influence will reform that depraved bird of yours."

The curate's parrot was placed in the same room with the wicked one, and as soon as the two birds had become accustomed to each other the bad bird remarked:

"I wish the old lady would die."

Whereupon the clergyman's bird rolled up his eyes and in solemn accents added:

"We beseech Thee to hear us, good Lord!"

The story got out in the parish and for several Sundays it was necessary to omit the litany at the church services.

Fighting for an Umbrella.

A Frenchman died not long ago and left a large estate, which was divided among the heirs without quarreling—all but an umbrella which had been in the family for over fifty years. This was fought for in a lively way, and the aid of the court had finally to be invoked to quiet the disturbance.

1 lb Packages, 37c, ☞3 for $1.00,
1-2 lb Packages 18c, ☞3 for 50c.
1-4 lb Packages 10c, ☞3 for 25c.
1 lb. bulk, ☞30c.

MR. L. SCHEPP is the First to Manufacture in the United States SHREDDED COCOANUT, by which process all the natural flavor and oil of the NUT is retained. He gives an Absolute Guarantee that his products under the Trade Mark above, are free from Paraffine or Cotton Seed Oil.

The light and flaky appearance and condition of goods, and their keeping qualities makes them much more economical and convenient than the fresh nut.

He is the pioneer also, in the Manufacture of DESICCATED COCOANUT, and the largest Manufacturer in America—if not in the World. We handle DESICCATED IN BULK; selling 1 lb. for ☞20c and 6 lbs. for $1.00.

☞ "THE SPOT CASH GROCERY" are constantly distributing FREE SAMPLES of various commodities they handle, giving consumers the chance to test the merit of goods, new to many housewives. They have given away over 50 lbs. (free) of SCHEPP'S SHREDDED COCOANUT, as well as Chocolate, Farinaceous Samples, Salad Dressings, Etc.
